SCOPE OF SERVICES

The Lake County Fleet Division requires the provision of a new Fuel Management System having the capability to control, authorize, and record the dispensing of fuel/oil products as a stand-alone system with unattended operation on a 24/7 basis for four (4) fuel sites with multiple pumps at each location. The system will be fully “integrated / compatible” with the existing fleet management software (Ron Turley & Associates – RTA version 6.6) to allow for remote administration of the fuel management system. All system connectivity shall be wireless in nature.

The product must be compatible with the County’s current equipment and technology, and utilize existing fuel site equipment such as dispensers, hoses, nozzles, electrical sources and supplies, junction boxes, cabling and conduit, wherever possible. In total, there are more than 500 vehicles that utilize the County’s fuel facilities. Fueling is tracked using “RTA” version 6.6 -fleet management software.

The equipment to be furnished must be designed to meet the following specifications:

National Electrical Code, NFPA #70-2008
Uniform Fire Code
Underwriters Laboratories UL1238 and 913
CSA C22.2 No 142 & 157
FCC Part 15, Class A
National Weights and Measures Certification

Fuel Management software must provide:

- Autonomous security, control, and accounting operations requiring automatic capture of vehicle number.
- System must capture input of PIN number for employee making the transaction and input of odometer for the vehicle receiving fuel.
- System must fully integrate with existing “RTA” version 6.6 fleet management software. (Probably have to coordinate with RTA the writing of an additional efi module).

Fuel Island Controller function:

- Will evaluate data and upon verification that the data meets all acceptance criteria (i.e. vehicle is within allowable mileage limits as designated by Fleet personnel)
- Identify vehicle and driver using the media associated with the installed system, to include capability to receive, store, and update odometer readings.
- Allow fuel dispenser to be activated (at the Astatula location this includes dispensing of oil in quart containers).
- Record all fueling transaction information – vehicle number, employee number, odometer reading, pump number, total gallons pumped, and price per gallon.

- Transfer fueling transactions to remotely located RTA fleet management software.

Performance:

System Components: The fuel management system should consist of the following or equivalent:

- A device to provide a means to identify the Property number to recognize and provide for input of Employee ID, to recognize and provide for input of Odometer Reading, and to identify from which pump the customer would like to obtain fuel
- A Fuel island controller, located on the fuel island, should be used to:

Turn fuel dispensers on and off, monitor fuel dispensed, receive and send data, recognize authorized fleet vehicle users, and interface with dispensers and tank level monitoring systems. The fuel island controller should have flash memory in order to be updated via telephone, it should also store between 2,000 to 4,000 fueling transaction with data to identify the vehicle, user, type of fuel, amount of fuel, pricing, date/time stamp and additional information.

The new system must be integrated with Fleet Management Software currently in use (RTA). Software should be capable of transferring transaction data in a standard format (such as flat ASCII file, comma delimited, XML). Software should include an interface with fleet management software to allow invoicing from RTA Fleet Management software. Software must have the capability to be used on a network with multiple seats. This software must be compatible with Windows operating systems (Windows XP Professional, Vista, or 2007) and use either an Access or SQL database system.

System Configuration:

The fuel island equipment should be configured to authorize and control the dispensing of fuel based on the information supplied to the Fuel island controller by the method/mode proposed, such as:

- a) Automotive information module.
- b) Read/write keys.
- c) Magnetic smart cards.

Data such as wireless ID Tag, site signature, vehicle ID, fuel type, quantity limits, odometer reading, and fuel island controller stored data (site signature, RF/ID Tag ID to be processed by the fuel island controller prior to authorizing a fueling operation.

Upon completion of a fueling operation, a fueling transaction (time measured to the second, date, pump ID, hose number, quantity, transaction type, operator name and number, vehicle ID, and odometer) must be recorded by the fuel island controller for later transfer to the software.

System Capabilities:

- (a) Each fuel island controller must have the ability to simultaneously control up to eight (8) hoses. Each fuel island controller reader should store between 2,000 to 4,000 transactions.
- (b) The fuel island controllers must have a time out to deactivate a hose should the pulse count and/or fueling stop. This missing pulse detector should be variable with the supervisor being able to set it as required.
- (c) Each hose should have the capability to be individually activated
- (d) Number of pulses for each unit of measurement, at least up to 1000
- (e) Ability to interface with electronic dispensers is desired.
- (f) The fuel island controller must permit manual override of the fuel island controller should any problem occur. The system must allow for remote lock-out and reset of the fuel island controller. The override must be a complete, total by pass of the fuel island controller and must be able to be completed instantaneously from off-site location.

Operator Input at Fueling Station:

The operator (the individual performing the fueling) will (swipe a card/insert a key/input information) to identify property number, input a PIN number to identify operator, input current odometer reading, choose a pump number, remove the fuel nozzle from the dispenser, move the fuel dispenser's reset handle to the fueling position, insert the fuel nozzle into the filler neck associated with the vehicle's fuel tank, and dispense fuel. Upon completion of fueling operations the operator will remove the fuel nozzle from the filler neck and reinsert the fuel nozzle into the dispenser, after turning off the dispenser's reset handle. The control, authorization and accounting operations are all autonomous and carried on unknown to the individuals using the fuel facilities.

Data Management and Reporting

Each fuel island controller should have the capability to be downloaded by a fleet employee at their convenience or on a time-of-day programmable basis. Software should be capable of unattended dialing and downloading. When automatically downloading, the software should dial each site in sequence, returning to sites whose modem is busy on first or second attempts. Following downloading, transaction data must be available for report generation. Software should operate on an IBM compatible PC or server using the previously mentioned Windows operating systems.

Software should provide the following information at the Central Controller as a transaction record:

- (a) Vehicle odometer and hour meter
- (b) Vehicle/Equipment ID Number (Property number)
- (c) User ID (PIN for each Employee)
- (d) Transaction Number
- (e) Number of gallons dispensed to tenths of gallons
- (f) Fuel site
- (g) Date & time (to the second)
- (h) Pump number
- (i) Product number

Software must be capable of reporting diagnostic error to operator and Central Controller. Error messages must report the nature of the error and report this information to Central Controller.

Storage:

In the event of a power failure, the system should have the capability to store all data collected up to the time of the power failure for a minimum period of three months.

The fuel island controller at each fueling site should have the ability to operate if the Central Controller is down, limited only by the fuel island controller's internal storage capacity. There should be a method to access transaction information should there be data transmission problems.

Design:

The equipment should be designed for operation by non-technical personnel. Suitable clearance and access should be provided to all maintainable points and the fuel island controller should be constructed in a modular manner.

Environment:

The operator interface with the fuel management system is outdoors and exposed to the elements. Thus, the fuel island controller and all related components/modules, must have an operating range of 20° to 140° Fahrenheit;

Utility Support Services:

The fuel island controller equipment should be designed to operate from 120 VAC, 60 Hz single-phase power.

Safety:

Fuel management system equipment must be provided with all necessary safety devices and guards to protect the operator. All primary operator control buttons, switches, etc. must be grouped and mounted in a location affording the operator convenient access to the controls. Essential safety operating instructions must identify safety and health hazards associated with the equipment and the procedures and practices necessary for safe operations. Placards must be provided to warn operator or maintenance personnel of hazardous areas that could cause injury. Installation manuals and maintenance manuals include all necessary safety and hazardous conditions warnings.

Training:

Qualified instructors must provide on-site training of personnel in the functions of operation, maintenance, and repair as they apply to each specific item of equipment. Supervisors and operators at each refueling site must also be provided training in the operation of the Fuel island controllers. Training on software can be conducted at a specified computer site location.

Maintenance and Spare Parts:

Maintenance Agreement - The responding organization must agree to provide system maintenance on a yearly renewable maintenance contract for the life of the system.

Spare parts - The responding organization must agree to sell spare parts at a reasonable rate for the operating life of the equipment, estimated to be at least 20 years.

Additional Requirements:

Semi-Manual Mode. The fuel island controller must have the capability to record fuel dispensed in emergency situations when there is a need for vehicles without keys or cards or automotive information modules to be refueled and yet fuel accountability is still desired. It is expected that individual fuel island controllers may be put into a semi manual mode by the supervisor. When in this mode, fuel can be dispensed by any pump as if the fuel island controller were not functioning, but the Fuel island controller will record all transactions as semi manual transactions.

Self-diagnostic capability. - The fuel island controller should permit internal diagnostic testing of boards, LCD, and keypad and possibly other critical items.

Toll free telephone support with a customer help desk must be available to assist in trouble-shooting the system's hardware and software. Additionally, a means of dialing into the fuel island controllers to perform diagnostics is desirable.

Extended Maintenance Agreements. The company providing the equipment should provide extended agreements for maintenance of equipment and software for at least ten (10) years.
